

Contributors to this issue

HARA Yumiko

Senior researcher, NHK Broadcasting Culture Research Institute. Joining NHK in 1978, she has engaged in numerous research projects including “International Comparative Study of Television Broadcasting,” “Adult Education and Television Use,” and “Audience Behavior and Multimedia.”

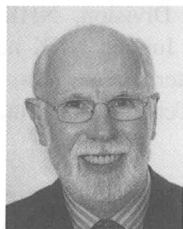

IDA Mieko

Researcher, NHK Broadcasting Culture Research Institute. Joining NHK in 1990, she has been working in surveys and research at the Institute since 1993. Among her major projects were surveys on “Attitudes of Japanese” and “Media and Daily Life.”

KAMIMURA Shuichi

Senior researcher, NHK Broadcasting Culture Research Institute. Joining NHK in 1971, he specializes in various types of polls, mainly audience rating studies. Among his recent projects were the studies “Japanese and Television 2000” and “Media and Daily Life.”

Vincent PORTER

Professor of mass communications and Director of the Graduate Research Centre in the School of Communication and Creative Industries, University of Westminster, United Kingdom.

SONE Toshiro

Senior researcher, NHK Broadcasting Culture Research Institute. Joining NHK in 1966, he was foreign correspondent in Paris and Sydney. He was involved in the international signal production of the host broadcaster for the 1988 Seoul Olympics, the 1990 Asian Games in Beijing, and the 1998 Winter Olympics in Nagano.

TOMOMUNE Yumiko

Senior researcher, NHK Broadcasting Culture Research Institute. She joined NHK in 1975 and worked in production of programs relating to the household, industry, and home science. In 1995 she moved to the Institute where she has been engaged in surveys and research analysis of television audiences.

NINOMIYA Fumihiko

Director-general of the NHK Broadcasting Culture Research Institute. Joined NHK in 1969, where he served as senior producer of special programs, as director of cultural programs, Program Production Department, and as deputy director-general of the Programming Department.

OKAMOTO Takashi

Editor of NHK Broadcasting Studies and director of the Media and Management Research Division, NHK Broadcasting Culture Research Institute. Joining NHK in 1971, he was reporter of political and international news, and foreign correspondent based in Teheran, Jakarta, Sydney and Bangkok.

* * *

Editorial note: Japanese names in NHK Broadcasting Studies are given in the customary surname-first order.